

CLEAN MILK IS EXPERT'S TOPIC

Ben R. Eldredge Talks to Farm Bureau Meeting
at Hooper

Ben R. Eldredge, dairy specialist of the extension service of the Utah Agricultural college, demonstrated to the members of the local farm bureau that just at Hooper Tuesday night methods that should be used to produce clean milk for family use.

Mr. Eldredge said in part:

"The first requisite is a healthy cow, healthy in every organ of her body. She should be kept in clean, sanitary surroundings conducive to her health and comfort, fed with clean wholesome food and provided with an abundance of pure water.

"The one that does the milking should be a person of good health, clean habits, dressed in clean clothing and the milking should be done with clean dry hands.

TIN PAIL PREFERRED.

"Utensils such as pails should be made of good smooth material, preferably of tin and not of galvanized iron and the pail should be headed or with a small top, that is, an opening reduced in size which will exclude much percentage of falling hair or particles of matter that may be floating in the air.

"The milking utensils and containers should be thoroughly cleaned and sterilized using the following procedure: Wash as quickly after using as may conveniently be done, first rinsing away all milk with cold or tepid water; then scrub with moderately warm water containing a good alkali cleaning powder but not a soap or soap powder. The water used in this instance should not be above 130 degrees Fahrenheit and a good brush and not a cloth should be used for scrubbing. After scrubbing, a good rinse in cold or tepid water is necessary.

"Do not mix milk with cold milk or warm and cold cream when two lots are to be poured together until the warm milk or cream has cooled to the temperature of the other.

SAME WITH SEPARATOR.

"Separator parts should receive the same treatment after each using which means that when the separator is used morning and evening it should be washed morning and evening.

"Do not mix milk and cold milk or warm and cold cream when two lots are to be poured together until the warm milk or cream has cooled to the temperature of the other.

"The aids in clean milk production are as follows: Plenty of bedding for the cows, whitewashed floors or sheds with ample lighting from windows or from electric lights or clean lanterns. The lanterns should hang in convenient places and not be placed on the floor or on the ground. Soap, water and towel should be in a convenient place. An apron patterned like that used by a carpenter and divided so as to tie around the legs is a good thing for a milker to use. It is easily laundered and aprons should be provided in sufficient number so that as many as may be needed may be used each week. The milker's arms should be bare which eliminates the flapping of soiled sleeves over the milk pail.

"The first two or three streams of milk may with advantage be rejected by milking into the gutter or upon the ground or into some small receptacle and later on fed to the poultry."

HIGH OFFICER SENT TO PACIFY HAITIENS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—Brigadier General John H. Russell, a marine corps officer of long experience, will leave soon for Haiti to act as the personal representative of President Harding in an attempt to clear up the confusion involving American occupation which has been the basis for many complaints by natives and others and for several months.

State department officials in stating Tuesday that General Russell would go to Haiti, where he twice commanded the American forces, whether he would be given the title and post of American high commissioner in Haiti, creation of which was proposed, recommended by the special senate investigating committee.

Dr. Pierre Rudicourt, of Port au Prince, a native Haitian, expressing before the senate committee, however, made the statement that he had been informed that "a brigadier general" was to be appointed high commissioner.

There has been much argument in recent years about a fitting motto for the coin of the realm. We suggest "Abide with Me."—Needham Register.

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Nobody Can Tell When You
Darken Gray, Faded Hair
With Sage Tea

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture restored its natural, wonderful effect.

By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it is so easy to use, too. You simply wash through the hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color, and looks glossy, soft and beautiful.

GIRL, 16, AND MAN CONFESS MURDER

She Planned Fatal

her to weaken and when told that Brighton had been arrested and had confessed she told her story frankly. According to her confession she met Brighton on a street two weeks ago. She said he used to give her free rides and that shortly after she had met him she suggested that they rob the Faus home and that Brighton get a partner to help him.

The men intended to rob the house Tuesday night before the tragedy, but she told them to put it off until Thursday. Then, she said, they came that night, but conditions were not right so it was postponed until the night of February 3. Before the actual entrance to the Faus home through the front door took place, the men and the girl conferred at the back door she said.

SHE BORE GRUDGE

"I told them in the first place I had a grudge against Mrs. Faus," she said. "She was always trying to put the juvenile court on me. She didn't believe in anyone having any joy in life. The girl admitted that she purposely told the detectives that men had fled in a different direction than that in which they ran. She met Brighton on the Sunday following the shooting, she said, rode to Wandermere and back with him, and both made a further pledge not to speak.

ROBBERY DISCUSSED

In her previous conversations she told Brighton where he could probably find the Faus valuables. They frequently went to the Auditorium to dances in the two weeks of their acquaintance, she said, and the first suggestion of holding up the Faus home she said she made while returning from one of these dances.

"Then he asked me if there were any jewelry in the Faus home. All I had asked him was if it would be thrilling to stage a holdup." Although there was no agreement as to division of the loot, if there should be any, she said she had made up her mind to go to Idaho if he received that much money.

The girl was not prepared to say that Brighton did not fire the shot that resulted in the death of Mr. Faus. "I always thought he did it," she said. "The man who did the shooting had a voice like him, and I believe the man who did the shooting was wearing Brighton's overcoat. I could not say who fired the shot, but I think it was Brighton."

The girl said she did not think she would be implicated nor caught. She said she had always behaved well around the Faus home and had given other men reason to suspect her. However, she had an intuition that she would not return to the Faus home when she was taken to the station late yesterday afternoon for the apparent purpose of looking over suspects.

MAN BLAMES GIRL

The confession made by Brighton in most respects dovetailed with that of the Wacaster girl, with the exception that he places the blame for the conspiracy upon her shoulders and she places it upon his.

"This girl had a grudge against Mr. and Mrs. Faus and asked me if I would do it for her," Brighton said. "I told him he said, that she wanted to put a scare into them—to hold the place up—and that she would 'get a fellow to help.' Brighton said the other man had a 38-caliber revolver and that when they appeared at the front door, after having been at the rear of the house, the girl put her hands in the air and backed into the room. Brighton was not certain whether Mr. and Mrs. Faus asked the question, 'What do you mean?' He said, 'I'm in the room at the moment,' he said, but a second later, after the other man had told them, 'You know what this means,' he looked in through the curtains and heard Mrs. Faus' request that they not go upstairs because her mother was sick. He walked over to the hall entrance, he said, and stood there and just as he turned around he heard the shot.

"I thought, 'My God, he killed him,' and I thought we'd better beat it. We ran out and went down South Temple to North East and ran down to First South and down to my home at 327 East First South. He had on my army overcoat. He took it off and he left me a 38-caliber revolver and a note that said, 'I'm going to beat it for California. And that is the last I see you again.' I'm going to beat it for California. And that is the last I see you again." Brighton said he left his companion at First South and Eighth East and has not seen him since.

Brighton said he wore a white handkerchief with a brown border and that he had burned it up a few hours before he was arrested. He said that the girl had been easily found. She told him, he said, some were in a bureau drawer and some were wrapped up in the awning on the sleeping porch.

MET AT GIRL AT DANCE

Brighton said he first met Miller at the Alton hotel, 138 South State street last December, and that he met the girl at the Auditorium dance hall, and told her she frequently rode to his car. He unfolded the robbery plan to Miller, he said, while the latter was riding on his car and the robbery was arranged for the Tuesday night previous to the murder. It was postponed until Thursday, he said, and then put off twenty-four hours because of company at the Faus home Thursday night.

Brighton was taken to the state prison as soon as he had finished his statement. There were no threats of violence toward him, but Chief of Police Burbridge thought it better to place him there than in the city prison. The police had not found the night watch charge to place against Brighton and the girl, but it was said that charges of first degree murder probably will be preferred by members of the detective force.

Mother of Man Held for Murder Reported Very Ill

Gilbert L. Brighton, who last night confessed to being one of the trio implicated in the murder of Charles A. Faus, is believed innocent of the murder charge by his mother, Mrs. Thomas Brighton, who resides at Logan. This information was given out by W. M. Timmons, brother-in-law of Brighton, who arrived in Ogden at 12:25 p. m. today on route to Salt Lake to lend what aid he could to Brighton.

Mrs. Brighton has been very ill for the past few months and is now in a light on the case, the police detectives remain firm in their announced belief the mystery will not be solved until he has been found.

A statement that the body of William Desmond Taylor, slain motion picture director, had been placed in order before the police arrived to investigate the tragedy, was made by F. Parsons, a member of the "flying squadron" of police which answers the police calls. The police allowed it to be known Wednesday.

The report Parsons gave his superiors said the body had been carefully "laid out on the floor of his apartment, and a chair overturned across his legs. His report is said by attaches of the district attorney's office to have "interested" them very much.

Parsons, with Detective Thomas

Zeigler, reached the scene before any other officers.

William C. Doran, chief deputy district attorney, announced he would be at the head of the combined effort to solve the mystery, and that the investigation would be far more sweeping than any possible to any one of the three forces involved.

He stated every person who is believed to have the slightest connection with the affair or the slightest information bearing upon it, would be subjected to the most rigid questioning.

This would mean motion picture people from the humblest to the highest, it was said, and would result at least in the disposition of certain minor mysteries, as for instance, the movement of letters said to have been written by actresses, including Mabel Normand and Mary Miles Minter, to the dead director.

The decision for a centralization of activity was reached after a consultation at the district attorney's office of his agents.

Assigned to the case and the members of the city detective bureau who have been working on it from the beginning.

THE SEARCH FOR EDWARD F. SANDS

Taylor's missing former butler secretary, is proceeding unabated, as if the detectives still consider it to the effect he was in the Taylor apartments about the time of the murder.

A new search of Taylor's apartments made by police detectives, today disclosed a bank book which had belonged to Sands, it was stated.

The administrator took possession of all articles owned by Taylor that the detectives did not need for their investigation.

ESTATE WORTH $20,000.

The estate, once valued at as much as $50,000, will not amount to more than $20,000, the police administrator stated, unless unknown bank accounts are located. The administrator said he had heard a rumor Taylor had a large account in a New York bank, but had been unable to verify it.

Miss Ethel Daisy Tanner of New York, the director's daughter, is the only claimant to the estate, it is said.

Among the director's effects were found several hundred cancelled checks. Many were drawn in connection with losses. It was said, and were endorsed by prominent persons in the film colony.

The administrator took possession of Taylor's library, wardrobe, phonograph, piano and jewelry and stated he would hold them until the estate was settled.

THREE LEADS FOUND.

Sheriff's deputies have announced their disbelief that Sands had any critical state," said Timmons.

The first news of Gilbert being implicated in the murder reached the family at Logan early today.

A morning paper carried the details of the affair and was the first information received by Mrs. Brighton regarding the murder. The mother, like any mother, naturally believes in the innocence of any wrong result. He has always been a loyal son and had a good clean record.

"Gilbert's mother is at a loss to understand the most drastic accusation and as much of the story as possible was withheld from her owing to her serious condition.

In order to secure an attorney or Gilbert and to aid him in any way possible. We realize the seriousness of the crime, which reports state is one of the worst in Utah history.

"Gilbert served in the army during the world war and has lived in Utah during the greater part of his life. His associations with Antoine Wacaster were unknown to the family. His mother has stated that she will always believe him innocent of the crime."

Accused Girl's Family Known to Ogden Man

Angeline Wacaster, aged 16, who is held at Salt Lake with Gilbert L. Brighton, charged with the murder of Charles A. Faus, was known to many Ogdenites. Scout Executive G. A. Gostes, a former resident of Lehi, stated today that he knew the members of the Wacaster family well.

"The Wacaster moved to Lehi from South Carolina about 1900 and settled on some dry land west of Lehi," said Mr. Gostes today. "The father, Samuel Wacaster, was one of the first in Utah to attempt dry farming successfully."

"When the family first moved to Lehi they were located near the Utah lake in the west end of the city where they lived in a dugout. They later lived in a shack, which the father constructed."

"The father was killed in a drunken brawl at Lehi by Gus Kelly. The family moved from Lehi to American Fork and later to Tooele. The final move to Tooele took place about ten years ago after the mother died. The children then went to live with the grandmother, Eliza Kelton, at Tooele."

"Although the Wacaster were very poor they were honest and always paid their bills."

"Angeline was a wilful girl and had a good reputation as far as I know. It is simply a case of a neglected home, of a girl making her way into the world, of a man who should be guided by the hands of her parents or a just guardian. Left alone in the world for five years she has made her way as best she could."

"As far as I know she had no no juvenile court record."

Reports that Miss Wacaster had been an inmate of the state industrial school were denied today by officials of the state institution.

HERE is another likeness of William Desmond Taylor, whose murder is still unsolved.

thing to do with the slaying of Taylor and said they had three "leads" involving persons in the film world.

It was said an actress called upon Chief Deputy Doran and advanced two theories, neither of which involved Sands.

One was believed to relate to a jealous sailor of himself and the other involved a group of motion picture people, it was said.

Mrs. McBurney told of having seen a man lurking in the shadows of heavy shrubbery surrounding the hotel Alvarado at Sixth and Alvarado streets, nearly two blocks from the Taylor apartments, on the night of the murder. This, she said, was about 9:45 o'clock, or approximately two hours after the time set by the police as that of the crime.

"My husband and I were returning from the theatre," said Mrs. McBurney, "we saw a man standing under the trees. I particularly noticed him because, although the night was chilly, he wore no overcoat. He had a cap and a dark gray muffled. We remarked at the time his actions were suspicious, although he was standing at a car stop, he did not board."

NO COMPLAINT ISSUED.

The police, however, insist the man to be sought was Sands. No complaint charging murder has been issued against him, however. No official reason has been given in any quarter for the absence of such a complaint in the face of the frank admission of the police that he is the man they want.

The investigation centering in the district attorney's office, it is said, may not bring forth a complaint until all articles owned by Taylor that the grand jury, which has not been impeached yet for 1922. It is understood this procedure would be hastened, however, if the need arises.

Among the persons named as likely to be called by the district attorney are Mabel Normand, Mary Miles Minter, Neva Gerber, Claire Windsor, all film actresses. Mrs. Douglas MacLean, wife of a film actor; Howard Fells, Taylor's chauffeur; and Henry Peavey, his negro housekeeper.

CALL MISS MINTER.

Miss Minter will be called because of her close friendship for Taylor; Miss Normand because she is one of the last persons to see him alive; Miss Gerber, because she was once his fiancée; and Miss Windsor, because she had been associated with him.

Peavey's statement as to his call at his employer's apartments the night of the murder, shortly after the departure of Miss Normand, is expected to fix the time of the murder.

Peavey found the body. He is expected to be questioned at great length. It is said that in private conversations he has added many details to the testimony he gave at the coroner's inquest; and to the statements he had made to the police and the sheriff's deputies.

CLIPPING FOUND.

A final search through William Desmond Taylor's apartments by the public administrator, disclosed, hidden in a leather case, a newspaper clipping of the slaying here within the last few months of Leon J. Manfre, also known as Mumfrie, by Mrs. Esther.

It gave details of the affair, together with the alleged threat of the dead man that he would kill Mrs. Alano "as he had killed her husband" unless she gave him $500 and her jewelry.

Another find was the original manuscript of the scenario of "Anne of the Indies," a motion picture picture in which Mary Miles Minter was starred, and which was directed by Taylor several years ago.

It was found that the initials "C. C. C." appeared frequently on stubs in Taylor's check books, also found in the apartments.

the fire started. No one can imagine why she listed as she did, for she was light at the time.

ALL HOPE GONE

No one on the Transportation early today held out any hope for the four men who were lost in the shipwreck. Beckman and Hall, who were on the Northern Pacific.

"They are undoubtedly lost," said one of the men with whom the Associated Press correspondent spoke before Captain Lusti requested that none of the men be questioned. Members of the crew say they were quarantined near where the fire broke out, and none of them was seen afterwards.

One of the boats picked up by the Transportation contained 13 men and in the other two were distributed the remainder of those saved, including Captain Lusti, Chief Engineer Clayton and Executive Officer Clyde Smith.

The Wylie, bringing five survivors from the Northern Pacific, came in Hampton Roads last night.

Survivors aboard the Wylie declared they were a long time to get out of the four men were lost as they were all sleeping near the place where the blaze originated, but the crew thinks they had ample time to get out, unless they were suffocated by smoke.

Unless the shipyard men took to a small boat by themselves they were lost when the Northern Pacific burned, for they were not aboard the Wylie.

Missing Waiters in Grasp of Law; Diners Make Kick

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 9.—Diners at one of the largest downtown hotels waited impatiently and loudly demanded service Wednesday night while the management started a city wide search for a crew of missing waiters.

The search ended at police headquarters. Thirty-five of them, negroes, had been arrested in a crap game in a back house. A call to police headquarters brought the waiters, racing back through the downtown section on foot.

The patrons turned back to the dining room, assured of something more sustaining physically than the strains of the hotel orchestra. And the negroes forgot the dice—and they face a gambling charge in police court.

With Five Shots in Body He Walks to Police Station

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—A limousine stopped at the curb on upper Riverside drive Wednesday night where Tony Bruno stood in overalls. Two well-groomed men stepped from the car, fired five shots into Tony's body and drove away.

Bruno got up, brushed himself, walked to a police station, told the story, and collapsed. The bullets "could not have been better distributed in his body," he said, lieutenant said, amazed that the man still lived, "whooping cough, children like it and it checks sneezing and snuffing—Advertisement."
